

Western Healthcare Practices & Communication Program

The Western Healthcare Practices and Communication (WHPC) program at CPC provides communication skills and professional healthcare refresher courses for experienced foreign healthcare professionals who plan to work in the Western healthcare industry.

CPC is committed to the rigid and vigorous instruction required for the completion of this program. Our academic curriculum prepares healthcare professionals for on the job training in various internships and work-study programs conducted on the premises of our educational partners and healthcare employers.

How Does This Opportunity Work?

The Western Healthcare Practices and Communication (WHPC) program at California Preparatory College (CPC) provides communication skills and professional healthcare refresher courses geared to the Western healthcare industry for experienced international nurses who desire a greater understanding of our Western healthcare system.

Our program's goal is to bring prospective employers and educators together to introduce accomplished, practicing RNs to careers in the Western healthcare industry. CPC and the experienced WHPC foreign healthcare professionals are anxious to participate in volunteer internships and paid work-study programs in area hospitals and home health care businesses. These work-ready nurses will enthusiastically engage in work and perform duties related to our Western healthcare system within your organization.

Through the harmonious cooperative efforts of CPC and participating employers/business partners, such as your organization, this program promotes a two-step approach to accomplish this goal.

Initially, it will provide volunteer internships at your organization throughout the first year of the nurses' academic training at CPC. The next and final step will involve up to two years of paid work-study training. This provides your organization with an opportunity for a relatively inexpensive method to evaluate, groom and then potentially hire employees whom you have already become acquainted with during the initial program.

And finally, the volunteer internships and paid work-study programs will provide the international nurses an opportunity to connect that which is being learned in the classroom to real jobs in the U.S., to put into practice academic achievements and gain valuable work experience in the Western healthcare industry.

For more information on this program call Joel Peterson, Internship & Work-study Director at 951.316.3675 or email jpeterson@calprepcollege.com.

VOLUNTEER INTERNSHIPS CPC student nurses/interns are already experienced international nurses. Using them as volunteer labor will not only help your patients but your bottom line, too.

WORK-STUDY EMPLOYEES Once the student completes the WHPC academic requirements, they will obtain their CA Nursing License and can work for up to 2 years at below market wages while they learn on the job Western Healthcare practices.

GROOM POTENTIAL PERMANENT EMPLOYEES Our nurses will qualify for a 1 year internship and up to 2 years of paid work-study. That could be up to 3 years of on the job training and employee relationship building. It is up to you whether you want to hire the student/nurse who is now a trained and potentially valuable permanent employee, committed to your organization!
