

ADMISSIONS INFORMATION

CPC admits students who will thrive in the unique CPC learning environment. CPC looks at the potential of the student in addition to their previous educational history. Students who are accepted at California Preparatory College receive dual enrollment at a regional accredited institution that guarantees transferability of our academic courses.

FRESHMEN

All applicants must complete and document at least one of the following requirements to be considered for acceptance:

- Have received a high school diploma from an accredited secondary school
- Have passed the California High School Proficiency Exam
- Have passed the General Education Development Exam
- Have completed high school at a documented home school or individual study program
- Be 18 years of age and able to complete or pass one of the previously listed requirements within the first semester of enrollment
- Be enrolled in the English as a Second Language Program

TRANSFER STUDENTS

All transfer applicants must complete and document the following requirement to be considered for acceptance:

- Have earned 12 or more transferable (non-remedial) units of college credit.

Students who request credit for courses taken at another accredited college must submit one official transcript delivered from the school of origin in a sealed envelope to the Admissions and Records Office at CPC. Transcripts will be evaluated according to the scholastic standards and policies at California Preparatory College.

After submitting documentation of completed coursework, the student's acceptability will be determined through an interview process and approval of the admissions committee.
